WHY LIBRARIES?

After teaching Hilary (a student with special needs) how to use the library online catalog, she taught one of her friends how to search. Seeing the two of them discussing and sharing made my heart leap. I thought, "This is what it is all about, those precious moments you can really cherish as a professional!"

I love the truck drivers. They rush in and grab about 10 tapes to get them to New York and back, then rush back in because the truck they are driving has a CD player instead of a cassette player. We are planning a booklist: "On the Road Again."

Jose came to the public library to use the computers and said he hated to read. I convinced him to get a library card and check out a book. After much discussion, he decided to check out Captain Underpants. He was hooked! He is now an avid reader and likes all kinds of books. He makes my day whenever I see him.

There is nothing more rewarding than seeing the relief in the eyes of a teacher when we are able to retrieve articles through databases and find the needed titles through interlibrary loan. It is not uncommon for a teacher to send students to the media center for help, once they realize the many ways we can access information and assist anyone with any project.
